

Monkey Law Trial Can't Start Without Prayer

But Judge Instructs Ministers Not to Say Anything About Case, Overruling Defense Objections That Prayer May Be Prejudicial Where State Contends There Is Conflict Between Science and Religion.

The prayer by the Rev. Stribben followed.

Judge Wants More Time.
The prayer ended, Judge Raulston announced that he had not yet concluded the examination of the

on the defense motion to dismiss the indictment of John T.
Scopes as a violation of the state and Federal Constitutions. He asked the indulgence of both sides and said he needed more time to complete his decision on the defense motion to quash the indictment, and court recessed until this afternoon.

Municipal police said the physician offered a police constable $10,000 for a statement that the constable was responsible for the "planting" of documents in the possession of M. Dosser, representative of a Soviet company, that led to Dosser's arrest.

Fortunatoff was seized while offering the money to the constable, the police said.

The arrest was made the subject of a sharp note to Great Britain last week by Foreign Minister Tchitcherine of the Soviet Republic.

THE VACATION SPOT.

Vacation time is here and you live in the ideal vacation land. Do you realize this? Some of you may. Probably most of you do not. Do you realize, you who claim the great Empire State as home, that you are fortunate you are a "York Stater"? This great state of ours is the ideal vacation land. Everything in the way of a vacation that Nature can offer is here. Think of what we have almost at our front door: Woods and forests; lakes and streams; mountains and plains; seashore and rivers; highlands and lowlands.

The foregoing are some of the advantages offered by the Empire State to vacationists. Do you here at home appreciate these things? Do you stop to consider that here in New York state "vacationists" may make as their vacation spot any kind of scenery they desire? The Catskills and Shawangunks, with their thousands of acres of timber, and many streams and lakes, stand out for those whose call comes from the woods. Then, too, is the great Atlantic close at hand with miles and miles of shimmering beaches.

Go back from the seashore, and come down from the mountains to mid-New York; with lake after lake, the Finger Lakes and chains of other lakes, which give you more scenery and out-of-door entertainment. Here, too, in central New York are the farm lands, at this time of year with hundreds and hundreds of acres of golden grain waving in the wind, and with the orchards, famed the world over for their fruit, heavy with the season's yields. Then, too, there are great rivers, the majestic Hudson, the Mohawk and scores of others none the less attractive.

New York state has made it easy, with its thousands of good roads, to reach all of these places. So when you map out this year's vacation, first look to the advantages of "York State." Thousands come from across the continent to see our Adirondacks and Catskills and other ranges and you should not neglect them and the other beauties that Nature has given us right here at home.

"WHY WOMEN FAIL."

There are nine reasons "why women fail," according to the national vice-president of the Federation of Professional Business and Women's Clubs. The nine reasons, as reported from the address of Miss Florence Sands at Dallas, Texas, include lack of seriousness, vision initiative, outside interests; lack of self-control, lack of the tolerance needed for cooperative effort. The ninth reason given is that women use too much rouge. With the exception of the last, these are also among the reasons why men fail. When men face threatened failure and shiver beneath the bludgeoning of unkindly fate they may smoke like chimneys and break the prohibition laws, but it never occurs to them to resort to the lip-stick or the rouge pot with a view to secure a measure of comfort or acquire new courage.

One very important reason why women fail—and why men fail—which Vice-President Sands seems not to have mentioned, is love of the soft life and unwillingness to buckle down to hard work. Hard work day in and day out is easier in theory than in practice, particularly in these pleasure-mad times.

In conclusion it must be said that the women gathered at Dallas exhibited no little forbearance and self-control, considering what they had to endure—as Miss Sands herself may realize after reflection. They did not hiss, howl down or otherwise mob their free-tongued and uncomplimentary vice-president.

Mrs. Joanna Gregg says that if Chicago will elect her its Mayor she will expose graft and corruption, reduce taxes, solve the local transportation problem, and thoroughly cleanse the police department.

From all accounts a Mrs. Joanna Gregg is precisely what Chicago needs—that is, if she does not underestimate the job and overestimate her talents.

Lynchings are steadily decreasing in number. In the first six months of 1925 there were but nine in the entire country, one of them as far west as Utah. Though this was an advance on 1924, it was six less than in the first half of 1923 and 21 less than in the corresponding period of 1922.

The hospitable folk of New Zealand are troubled to know whether they should offer alcoholic refreshments to the officers and men of the United States fleet when it arrives there. Such innocence is a refreshment in itself.

OLD TREATMENT STILL BEST.

A European physician has spent many months investigating the causes of dysentery and diarrhoea, with a view to securing a method of treatment that would be adequate.

He is of the opinion that much of our dysentery and diarrhoea is really due to constipation. The waste material simply becomes a foreign body, an irritant in the intestine, and sets up a catarrhal condition similar to that found on any irritated surface.

His treatment, after exhaustive research work, is just the same as he and other physicians have used for many years, that is by purging the intestine, and doing without food of any kind.

He starts off with the old fashioned calomel and salts treatment, or castor oil, followed by a tablespoonful of sodium sulphate.

If the patient is in good physical condition he has him do without any food for six days. If less rugged then for a shorter time, but never for less than three days. The only nourishment of any kind is water which is given freely. He states that death in dysentery is usually due to the patient taking medicines to stop the action and pain of the muscles and nerves of the intestine, as they attempt to get rid of the intestinal disturbance. These medicines by stopping the muscular action, permit the poisonous matter to remain in the intestine, with the result that the whole system becomes poisoned. I know that the temptation is strong when the dysentery and pain is severe, to take morphine or other drugs to quiet things. However the common-sense thing, and the really scientific thing is to get rid of the irritant before the strength of the patient is exhausted.

In fact with the ordinary attacks that come from time to time, it would be good sense not to wait a few days, but take the purgative, do without food for a couple of days, and drink some water.

It is always good treatment also to come back to your ordinary diet slowly, that is, after fasting two days, to eat light food for a couple of days longer.

However it is a good thing to know that the old-fashioned treatment is still considered the best.

Farm Population Declined in 1924

Drop of Six Per Cent Reported by Department of Agriculture—Movement From Cities to Farms Was Two Per Cent.

The farm population of the United States decreased approximately 182,000 during 1924, according to estimates based on a survey of 25,000 representative farms made recently by the United States Department of Agriculture. This is a drop of .6 per cent during that year, the estimated farm population on January 1, 1925, being 31,134,000 compared with 31,316,000 on January 1, 1924. This estimate includes not only the agricultural workers, but all men, women and children living on the farms on that date.

The movement from farms to cities, towns and villages in 1924 is estimated at 2,075,000; the movement to farms was 1,396,000 making a net movement from the farm population of 679,000 persons, or 2.2 per cent. Births among the farm population during 1924 are estimated at 763,000 and deaths at 256,000 leaving a natural increase of 497,000 which reduced the loss due to the cityward movement to 182,000 or .6 per cent.

A similar estimate made in 1922 showed a loss in farm population of 460,000 as against 182,000 in 1924. The gross movement from farms to cities in 1922 was 2,000,000 compared to 2,075,000 in 1924, a slight increase. The gross movement back to the farms in 1922 was 380,000 compared to 1,396,000 in 1924, a very decided increase. The net movement from farms to cities in 1922 was 1,120,000 or 3.6 per cent and in 1924, 679,000 or 2.2 per cent.

Two geographic divisions, the New England and South Atlantic states, showed a net increase in farm population for the year 1924, of 9 per cent and .2 per cent respectively. All other divisions showed decreases, the mountain states leading with a loss of 2.8 per cent.

The decrease in farm population due to the cityward movement, not taking into account births or deaths, was highest in the mountain states 4.3 per cent, followed by the Pacific and west south central states. In all other divisions, except New England, the percentage of decrease due to the cityward movement was equal to or less than the average for the whole United States, 2.2 per cent. New England alone showed a gain of .3 per cent, since more people moved from cities to New England farms than left farms for cities.

The movement from farms to cities was found to be at the highest rate in the mountain states, 13.8 per cent, followed by the Pacific, New England, Middle Atlantic, and East north central states in order. In the movement to farms from cities, the mountain states again lead, with 9.5 per cent, followed by the New England, Pacific, Middle Atlantic, and east north central states.

Prestige & Profit

Goods advertised in newspapers are superior to non-advertised goods!

This is the conclusion of a Better Business Bureau that has been checking up newspaper advertising in an Eastern city.

Careful comparisons were made of advertised goods and similar lines that were not advertised.

In 95% of the cases, the Better Business Bureau reports, the advertised articles were superior in quality to the non-advertised articles.

Good news for newspaper readers—of course, but most of them know it by experience.

How about the national advertiser who is seeking that elusive thing called "prestige"?

A manufacturer's brands are in the best company when they are in the advertising columns of the daily newspaper.

And since newspaper advertising sells goods, newspaper advertisers combine prestige with profit.

Milk Preparations

The difference between condensed and evaporated milk is a difference of sugar content and method of preparation. Condensed milk is prepared by adding sugar before evaporating. Evaporated milk is made by evaporating part of the water and preserving by heat after the product is in the final container.

Low-Air Pressure is the Answer

These were the things that car owners wanted.

The things that made them demand balloon tires. Read them and then ask yourself how you can get them except in a tire that can be run at low enough air pressure to provide a soft air cushion between the car and the road.

Some car owners have been sold the balloon principle and then handed the name only.

Just a big, round, fat tire with the name "Balloon" on it will not necessarily give low-air pressure riding comfort.

The original ideal of the industry was a flexible side wall, low-pressure tire.

Yet today some "balloon" tires must be run at too high pressure for ideal cushioning, as they wear out too fast when they are run soft.

It is important to you as a car owner to remember this fact.

The United States Royal Balloon is spoken of as the "Balloon Tire Principle at its Best," because it can be run at low-air pressure without injury.

It is built of Latex-treated Web Cord which provides the necessary strength and flexibility.

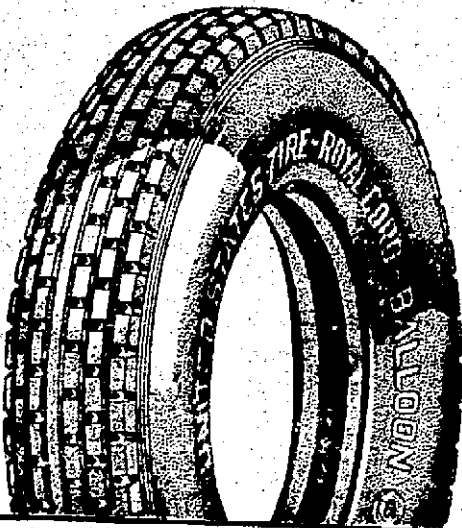

It has the U.S. Low-Pressure Tread which wears slowly and evenly and eliminates early, uneven and unsightly wear.

Specify U.S. Royal Balloon Cords and be sure of true low-pressure cushioning.

Special Poultry Culling Service

Poultry owners in Ulster county are taking advantage of the special culling service in greater number than ever before. Already owners of over eight thousand birds have sent in requests for the service, on blanks supplied for that purpose by the Ulster County Farm Bureau. One of the biggest losses in every flock is the low producing hen, the hen that delivers her owner by laying from 30 to 50 eggs a year. The Farm Bureau and the Poultry Department at Cornell University are especially interested this year in eliminating this loss through judicious culling.

Two very capable and experienced men have been employed to handle the work this year. Raymond DuBois, a Cornell graduate and experienced breeder at Forest Glen, is already working, having to date handled 2,500 birds. His services will be available throughout the season. H. M. Summers comes to Ulster county from Cornell during the week of August 17-22 and will handle all work available during the week. Applicants for service will be notified in advance the exact time the culler will arrive at their place.

This service is strongly recommended for people in cities who have small flocks and more often smaller housing facilities. It is not a service for members only. Any county resident will receive prompt and efficient service.

The following blank may be clipped, filled in and mailed to the Farm Bureau office by those wishing the service.

APPLICATION BLANK.

I wish to eliminate unprofitable hens from my flock and hereby apply for a poultry culling expert. I agree to pay for the service at the following rate:

Two dollars for 100 birds or less, two cents for each additional bird, up to five hundred; one cent each for all over five hundred, payable on the date the work is finished.

Award Prizes for Better Homes

Atlanta and Santa Barbara Divide First Prize—How Entire Communities Helped to Demonstrate Possibilities and Advantages of Better Homes.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 14.—Atlanta, Georgia, and Santa Barbara, California, divided the first prize given annually by Better Homes in America for the best and most comprehensive demonstration of home improvement for which this national organization is striving. Announcement of the prize winners was made here today by Dr. James Ford, executive director of the organization. The committee selected the prize winners among nearly 1,300 competing communities, representing every state in the union.

While Atlanta and Santa Barbara divided the $500 first prize for the best urban demonstrations, Port Huron, Michigan, winner of this first prize two years ago, was awarded the special prize of $300 for the finest school practice home demonstration in the country. As Atlanta, Santa Barbara and Port Huron all conducted campaigns of first merit, the above form of award was adopted for this year instead of granting first, second and third prizes, as has been done in previous years.

Five homes were demonstrated in Santa Barbara by Miss Chase's committee, all of them being outstanding examples of excellence in architecture and furnishings. Two of the houses of four and five rooms, costing $3,800 and $6,200, were not furnished. Of the others, one contained six rooms and cost $6,109, a second three rooms and cost $1,544, and the third was located on a hillside and contained three separate apartments; this house cost $8,200. The public interest aroused by the demonstrations was notable, resulting in extraordinary attendance at the demonstration homes throughout Better Homes Week, which this year was the period from May 11 to 17, inclusive.

The agencies cooperating with the Santa Barbara Better Homes Committee covered a wide range, and included Women's Clubs, Chamber of Commerce, the municipal government.

The Atlanta Better Homes Committee this year, because of the comprehensiveness of its program as well as its quality, was also unanimously determined by the committee on awards to be clearly worthy of first place in the 1925 campaign.

Atlanta also had a multiple demonstration, showing the public three houses adapted for the use of families of varying walks of life, and two school practice apartments. Two of the homes were built for the purpose from plans of the Architects' Small House Service Bureau, and selected by the committee. One of these homes, containing six rooms, was designed for occupancy by a white family and cost $6,750. The other, a four-room house costing $2,150, was in the colored section of the city. It was demonstrated exceedingly well under the direction of a colored sub-committee.

All of the Atlanta demonstration homes were furnished on a strict budget, drawn up to comply with the average incomes of families of the type for which they were intended. An interesting feature of the Atlanta demonstration was its "Americanization apartment," furnished in the immigrant quarter of the city. There it was stressed to the immigrant portion of the city's population that it was important and desirable for them to retain, in their adopted country, their native arts and handicrafts, pottery, and the like.

Port Huron achieved a notable triumph two years ago in carrying off first prize. This year a Dutch Colonial house of five rooms and cost $4,811, was demonstrated, the students of the school having a hand in planning the house, the city architect supervising and completing this work. Students tore down the old house which stood on the site of the new demonstration home, and vocational students in the high school assisted in much of the work of putting up the house, such as the electric wiring, plumbing, and so on. This work was done, of course, under the direction of their teachers.

Pupils of the school selected the furnishings of the house, all of which were donated by local clubs, organizations of various kinds and individuals.

The Port Huron demonstration home has the value of being a permanent demonstration. Its origin was strictly educational, and as a school practice house it will provide continuous education in "better homes" for those who can profit most by it—those in the formative period of their lives, who have not yet set up homes of their own.

Fourth prizes of $50 each were awarded to Greenville, South Carolina; New Rochelle, New York; Cleburne, Texas, and Birmingham, Alabama.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, July 13.—There will be a fair and supper held in the Methodist Church, on Tuesday afternoon and evening, July 14, under the auspices of the Builders Class. The fair will open at one-thirty o'clock. Many useful and fancy articles will be for sale at very reasonable prices. Among the articles for sale are aprons of various styles and sizes, embroidered dresses for adults and children, articles for babies' use and apparel, buffet or dresser scarfs, console sets, lunch sets, hand embroidered towels, rugs, patch work quilt, and miscellaneous articles. Home made candy and ice cream and cake will also be for sale in the afternoon. Supper will be served at five-thirty and forward, and will consist of salads, potato and salmon, baked beans, pot cheese, jelly, pickles, radishes, lettuce, white bread and brown bread, coffee, cake and sherbet.

Robert Stalls of Cottekill preached an excellent sermon in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning to a good congregation. Services in the Methodist Church next Sunday morning as usual, Sunday school at ten o'clock, and preaching at eleven. Mrs. John Palen who has been spending several weeks in Brooklyn returned home on Sunday.

LOVE AND SACRIFICE

NICHOLAS BIDDLE

IF YOU exhibit a continuous willingness to love and sacrifice when all humans about you seem resentful and unappreciative, you have within your soul the essence of true nobility.

In wars between nations, in domestic turmoils, in the breaking of home ties, in the struggles for existence, love and sacrifice ultimately become the final arbiters.

What more beautiful than the love and sacrifice of a mother, who regardless of the unfortunateness and snubs of her children keeps on loving and making sacrifices for their comfort and advancement, still smiling complacently while in her breast she is carrying a burden causing aches and pains from which she would gladly be relieved, but refuses to be, because of her spiritual nobility and simple faith.

The world is full of such love and sacrifice, perhaps saving it and its peoples from divine wrath, but certainly making it better in manifold ways which we do not in our blindness and apathy perceive or consider.

When all men say "impossible," when the waters are snarling and the storms are beating against a wretched boy or girl, love and sacrifice stoop down and rescue him or her from peril.

There is no depth to which love and sacrifice will not descend; no height to which they will not scale to accomplish their object.

We may turn in lofty disdain from the little old woman with dimmed eyes, gnarled fingers and a limp in her walk, but if we could look into her heart and see its every recess the symbol of love and sacrifice, we might realize that we have snubbed an angel.

Every first of January we open a new book with high resolves.

On the first page there are profuse promises of love and sacrifice, then follow a few blushing leaves containing hasty scrawls; with the rest of the volume a blank.

We forget our vows as January is done, just as we forget to pay homage to the little old woman with the dimmed eyes and gnarled fingers, who never fails from the beginning of the year to the end to remember love and sacrifice, when she may be counted upon faithfully to do until the end of her days.

NICHOLAS BIDDLE was born September 10, 1750, with a taste for adventure. So when he was fourteen, he ran away from his home in Philadelphia, where he was born, and, as the expression goes, "went to sea."

He sailed to Quebec, then to the West Indies, where the ship was wrecked, and those of the crew who survived, were cast ashore on a desert island. As there was only one small life boat, they cast lots to see who should stay and drown or who should leave the ship. After some two months, the men were rescued and Biddle's wealthy family secured him an appointment in the British navy. He was twenty, then, and as he was considered too young to be allowed to accompany Musgrave on an arctic cruise, he deserted and shipped with the explorer as a common seaman, and went Nelson, later to become the world famous admiral, was his messmate.

When the War of Independence broke out, Biddle came home to enlist and showed such ability that he was given charge of ships that went out and captured enemy vessels, bringing supplies for their troops. He was the naval hero of the country. Then one day he got into a fight with an enemy ship and was wounded. Ignoring his hurt, he ordered an armchair and, supported on it, continued to direct the battle. His ship blew up and he perished along with the whole crew, a mere lad of twenty-seven. Yet he had accomplished more than most old men, during his brief lifetime.

(By George Matthew Adams.)

WHO SAID

"Methods are the master of masters"

THE man who uttered these words owed his success in life to his methodical way of doing things.

Charles Maurice de Talleyrand-Perigord—better known as Talleyrand—was a man of methods and a man who so thoroughly studied the problems that presented themselves before him for solution that he became one of the leading statesmen in the France of his day. He was born in Paris, February 13, 1754, and died there May 17, 1838.

In the year 1792 Talleyrand was sent to London on a diplomatic mission. While there his enemies at home brought charges against him of being involved in royalist intrigues and he was proscribed. In 1794—he had remained in England because of the proscription awaiting him in France—England passed the famous alien act and Talleyrand was forced to seek asylum in America. After two years' sojourn in the new republic, Talleyrand returned to France.

On his return to his native land he was appointed minister of foreign affairs, but being suspected of being in communication with the agents of Louis XVIII he was forced to resign in 1799.

Talleyrand was one of the first to recognize in Napoleon Bonaparte one of the great leaders of the time, and from that time forward for some years he devoted himself unflinchingly to the service of the "little corporal."

In 1807, following the peace of Tilsit, a wholesale arrest between Talleyrand and the emperor and in the following year Talleyrand secretly joined a royalist committee. The year 1814 saw him active in procuring the abdication of Napoleon and working to place Louis XVIII again on the throne. After holding numerous positions under the government he retired in 1834 and died in 1838 in private life.

YOUNG JUDEA CLUB HAS INTERESTING PROGRAM

The first of a series of literary meetings to be held by the Kingston Young Judea Club during the summer will take place tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the Hebrew School on Post street. A very interesting program has been arranged by a committee recently appointed for this purpose. In addition to the literary part of the program several musical numbers by local talent have been secured for the occasion.

The literary meetings form part of a number of activities which the Young Judeans are planning for the summer months. It has been the custom in past years for the organization to disband temporarily for the summer but this year, acting upon the advice of Dr. Ezekiel Leavitt, the leader of the club, and Charles Katz, it was decided to continue the club's activities.

At a recent meeting of the club, Dr. Leavitt gave a splendid report of the Young Judean convention held in Belmar, N. J. In his report he stated that he was particularly impressed with the keen enthusiasm shown by the delegates and added that this enthusiasm backed by hard work gives every indication of making this year one of the most successful which the national organization has ever enjoyed. He also told of the work which other branch chapters are accomplishing and expressed the desire that the Kingston branch cooperate in making the next year unusually active.

It is requested that all members and friends be on hand for the meeting tonight.

- The program for this evening is as follows:
1. Introductory remarks by the chairman.
 2. Song by Entire Club.
 3. Address by Dr. Ezekiel Leavitt.
 4. Piano Solo Miss Lillian H. Miller.
 5. Recitation, "The Wanderer," Mrs. Chas. Stein.
 6. Violin Solo, Miss Florence Bergman.
 7. Recitation, "The Jew," by Dr. Ezekiel Leavitt, Miss Anna Silber.
 8. Song by Entire Club.
 9. Address by Milton Katz.
 10. Piano Solo, Miss Lillian H. Miller.
 11. Story, "Who is Happy?" by Dr. Ezekiel Leavitt.
 12. Piano Solo, Miss Lillian H. Miller.
 13. Concluding remarks by the chairman.

EDITOR FELL JOINS PRESS ASSOCIATION

A. W. Fell, who at one time was night editor of the Kingston Leader, and more recently manager of the New England Daily Newspapers' Association, will join the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association as executive secretary September 1. Mr. Fell's headquarters will be at Harrisburg, Pa.

The association represents a merger of three Pennsylvania press groups, the Associated Dailies of Pennsylvania, the State Editorial Association and the Weekly Newspaper Association. The merger took place last February.

The new executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association served for five years as business manager of the Williamsport Sun. Later he became head of publicity for the Congregational Church in America. For the past several years he has been publisher and part owner of the Hudson (N. Y.) Daily Star.

Was Not Conversant With Family History

What is here narrated took place years ago, and all concerned have since passed away except the reporter mentioned—and he is not so young as he used to be.

A prominent woman had passed away in one of the Georgia cities. The local newspaper sent a reporter to see her son, a leading business man, to get the data for the obituary notice. After the reporter had secured most of the information desired he asked:

"Did your mother leave any brothers or sisters?"

"Rather a singular question," said the man courteously, his curiosity obviously excited. "Queer that I had never thought of that before. Let's see—did mother leave any brothers or sisters?"

"He considered it for a moment, but it was evidently too much for him, and calling his sister from an adjoining room he said:

"O, Mom! Did mother leave any brothers or sisters?"

"It was, of that old did—true, to be sure—and their names were duly recorded."

"I do here, this is news to me," said the man, speaking frankly to the reporter in the freedom of old friends.

"Did I never suspected it?"—Atlanta Constitution.

Investigating Forged Approval

On Stationary Similar To That Used By Motor Vehicle Bureau—Official of Company Stated He Believed Approval Was Genuine.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, July 14.—Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Charles A. Harnett has requested District Attorney Job H. Banton of New York to investigate the circumstances under which a forged approval of the "Smith Safety Shutter" is being circulated in New York state. On stationary similar to that used in the New York office of the Motor Vehicle Bureau there has been circulated what purports to be a copy of a letter written by Commissioner Harnett to the "Deflector Light Company" of Danbury, Conn. The letter follows:

"May 11, 1923.
"Deflector Light Company,
Danbury, Conn.
Gentlemen:

By this notice be advised that the Smith Safety Shutter, manufactured by your company, is hereby approved and that sale of the same article is in accordance with all the regulations of this department in the State of New York.

This Bureau is in accord with all sales made in the State of New York.
Very truly yours,
(Signed) CHARLES A. HARNETT,
Commissioner.

CAH-ETC."

Commissioner Harnett learned that the correct name of the company is the DFlecto Light Company. The electrotyped signature of the commissioner's name is obviously a poor attempt to imitate the commissioner's real signature and the effect shows the effort to be a very crude one. As a matter of fact, approvals are not made by letter but are issued on a regular form, prepared and used by the Motor Vehicle Bureau. Samples of the Smith Safety Shutter have been submitted to the Motor Vehicle Bureau but the commissioner said that absolutely no approval or anything that might be construed as an approval had been issued by the department.

Officials of the Motor Vehicle Bureau communicated with the DFlecto Light Company by mail and wire and demanded an immediate explanation of the obvious forgery. Excepting a telephone message from one of the principal stockholders, which stated that the company had no knowledge that the approval was not genuine, no explanation has been received. The Hudson-Fox Company of Danbury, Conn., according to this officer, is manufacturing the device for the DFlecto Light Company. The address of the DFlecto Light Company is Post Office Box 610, Danbury, Conn. The company has no other office.

Resume Coal Conference

Miners Produce Statistics Tending to Show Industry Can Meet Their Demands—Operators' Figures Show Higher Prices as Result.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Atlantic City, N. J., July 14.—Both sides were set for a battle of statistics when the wage conference between anthracite miners and operators was resumed here today.

Operators had figures tending to show the consumer will not stand for a raise in coal prices which they allege would follow an increase in miners' wages.

Miners had statistics upholding their contention that the anthracite industry is on a sound financial basis and well able to stand the demand of the union for a ten per cent wage increase for contract workers with a dollar a day increase for unskilled labor.

Nothing definite is expected from the sessions this week. John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, left for Indianapolis, leaving Vice-President Philip Murray in charge of the miners' case.

GENERALS BEAT THE SAUGERTIES ROAD NINE

The A. & H. Generals defeated the Saugerties road nine by the score of 15 to 7. The losers' battery was P. Stauble, pitcher and B. McGuire, catcher.

Line up for the winners: Wolf and Krom, catcher; Peters, pitcher; G. Mains, first base; A. Stelz, second base; P. Malmes, third base; Krom and Brandt, short stop; Fisher, right field; Brandt and Wolf, center field; Burger, left field. The feature of the game was the hard hitting of Krom and Stelz, Krom getting two home runs and Stelz getting four two base hits and one three base hit.

Wednesday night at the Abeel street park the A. & H. Generals will cross bats with the Gully All Stars, who have two wins over the A. & H. Generals.

Officials of the Motor Vehicle Bureau are not certain whether the forged document was prepared and is being circulated by the DFlecto Light Company or with its knowledge, or by a sales agency which has been sending agents to various parts of the state. Commissioner Harnett has taken this drastic action to make certain that this practice shall be stopped and the public protected. The Motor Vehicle Bureau issues no approvals of any kind of automobile accessory or device until it has been passed upon by the experts in the department and then only on a prepared form.

Potatoes and Hay Below Last Year

The acreage of potatoes in New York state has been decreased from 330,000 acres in 1922 to 313,000 acres in 1923, according to the combined state and federal crop report for July issued from the New York State Department of Farms and Markets. The crop now promises only 37,184,000 bushels compared with 46,620,000 bushels in 1922 and an average for the past five years of 39,673,000 bushels. This is not only true of New York but of practically every late potato-producing state. Maine's forecast is 33,088,000 bushels compared with 41,178,000 bushels last year. New Jersey has the promise of 5,760,000 bushels compared with 11,544,000 harvested in 1922. Pennsylvania has 24,837,000 bushels against 28,792,000 bushels a year ago. The states of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota have an estimated crop of 70,181,000 bushels compared with 114,064,000 bushels harvested in 1922.

The potato acreage in the United States—3,453,000 acres—is the lowest since 1907. Last year it was 3,753,000 acres. The United States production is now forecast at 349,566,000 bushels compared with 455,000,000 bushels in 1922 and an average of 418,000,000 bushels for the past five years. This is the lowest estimated production since 1919.

The extended drought in several parts of the state has cut the June 1st estimate of hay still further. The crop of tame hay is now estimated at 6,145,000 tons compared with 7,541,000 tons last year. The states of Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa have light crops of hay this year. The total production of tame hay is now forecast at 78,396,000 tons in the United States compared with 98,009,000 tons in 1922. A reduction of nearly 20,000,000 tons. Those farmers who could not market last year's large crop of hay should be able to dispose of it this year.

Many pastures had become pretty dry during June but rains the latter part of the month improved them considerably. The northern portion of the state has suffered the least from the drought. The condition figure is 88 compared with 92 a year ago and with 86 June 1st, 1923.

There appears to be a somewhat larger acreage of field beans than a year ago in New York with a condition of 96 this month compared with 86 on July 1st, 1922, although weather conditions and the prevalence of insects and fungi may cause decided changes in the condition figures between now and harvest time.

President Plans For Busy Week

Program for More Intensified Program of National Affairs Faces Chief Executive on Third Week of Vacation—Some of His Visitors.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Swampscott, Mass., July 14.—President Coolidge, entering the third week of his vacation on the North Shore today, faced a series of engagements that would indicate a program for a more intensified consideration of national affairs.

Secretary to the President Saunders has been given greater latitude in making appointments to the end that Mr. Coolidge this week will see more people than he has during the whole of his vacation so far. Thursday he will receive at White Court the new minister from Egypt who is coming to Swampscott especially to present his credentials.

The same day he will entertain at luncheon the minister of foreign affairs of Poland, John Hays Hammond, who has been one of the president's intimate friends and advisers, will be a guest at this luncheon. Hammond is now at his summer home in Gloucester.

Late today Mr. Coolidge will visit with some members of the governor's council which functioned when he was chief executive of Massachusetts.

BOYS WHO CAN COOK CAN MEET EMERGENCIES.

For the boy who likes camping, and for any boy who may have to depend on his own resources now and then, a few lessons in cooking are not amiss. Camp meals, unless a good cook is along, frequently become a succession of baked beans and fried eggs, a diet which has a strange and uncomfortable effect on the digestive apparatus. Every boy should have some general information on cooking vegetables and meats, know how to cook eggs in several ways, how to make cocoa and other simple drinks, and how to make good toast and biscuits. The more he knows the better, but many boys have little opportunity to get the practice necessary for elaborate cooking. Mother or older sister, however, can easily teach him enough so he can be sent camping without ruining his digestion, and in case of emergency he can prepare a meal at home that is well cooked and will at least hold body and soul together.

FAMILY REUNION ENDS IN DEATH OF BABY

A family reunion at Orange Lake Sunday afternoon had a tragic ending, when Oscar R. Decker, 14 months-old son of William T. and Helen Randolph Decker of Allard's Corners in the town of Montgomery, was instantly killed when the Essex touring car of his uncle crushed him.

When the baby's uncle, A. F. Randolph of New Jersey, was backing his car out of the garage in preparation to leaving for home, the infant wandered into the path of the car, the machine passing over his head, fracturing the skull and badly disfiguring the face. Randolph was released from all responsibility.

FINAL CHAPTER IN WALKER-SHADE AFFAIR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, July 14.—The final chapter in the Mickey Walker-Shade controversy over the welterweight title will be indited today when Walker is scheduled to go before the State Athletic Commission and give a definite answer as to whether he will accept a Shade title bout in New York. He already has signed for the bout with Jack Doyle, Vernon, California, promoter but Shade, refusing to fight Walker in that state, has been sustained by the local commission.

2,500 AUTOS WILL CARRY MACCABEES TO CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., July 14.—Officials of the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture, the American Automobile Association, and other national organizations interested in the traffic problem will give careful consideration to the reports on the operations of traffic laws in the various states to be brought to Washington by 10,000 Maccabees, who will arrive in the National Capital in 2,500 automobiles to attend their national convention July 20 to 24.

"The information to be obtained from such a caravan, which I understand is the largest ever known, should prove of inestimable value to the department in its study of traffic conditions throughout the United States," E. W. James, chief engineer of the Bureau of Public Roads, declared today.

"We are anxious to get such information, it brings to us the ideas, complaints, and recommendations of 10,000 motorists who have travelled by automobile from every section of the country, and their reports on the operation of traffic ordinances in states and cities they pass should be valuable," he said.

Officials of the American Automobile Association were also high in their praise of the nationwide study of traffic conditions to be made on the caravan by the Maccabees.

The discussion of better roads and traffic laws, and particularly the development of rural roads, so urgently stressed by the late President Harding, will be one of the important features of the convention.

"If there is any way we can help the government to improve the traffic problem and to help in building better roads, we want to go the limit in doing so," A. W. Frye, supreme commander of the Maccabees said today. "Every state and city has different traffic laws, and what is called safe driving in one state is termed reckless in another. The result is that motorists in a strange city do not know what to do, and their indecision is a menace both to themselves and other motorists and pedestrians."

The results of the questionnaires to be brought by the visiting Maccabees will be tabulated, and turned over to Congress and Government officials with a view to promoting uniform regulations for the entire United States.

First Railroad Unpopular

In the history of American railroad building the "little experiment road" of "Quincy railroad" built in Massachusetts to haul stones to help build the famous Bunker Hill monument is generally recorded as the first actual railroad ever constructed in America. It was unpopular and called impractical. Horse-drawn vehicles which rolled along on rails constituted the first railroad.

Liquor Smugglers Shift Some of Operations to Florida and Gulf Coast—Courts Not Uniform in Disposing of Seized Craft.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 14.—With New York's notorious rum row that once consisted of nearly 100 vessels cut to a lonely British schooner lying off Block Island, liquor smugglers have shifted their major operations to the Florida and Gulf coast, according to advice to the coast guard today.

A new rum row has been established in the Gulf of Mexico. Speed boats, capable of doing fifty miles an hour, are said to be operating nightly between Miami and other off coast islands, and the Florida mainland.

While a heavy blockade will be retained along the coast from Maine to Norfolk, Va., the coast guard will concentrate activities for the present in the gulf and Florida sectors.

Future anti-smuggling policies on the Great Lakes and Canadian border, where the coast guard, prohibition unit and customs service have boats, automobiles and men, is somewhat of a mystery.

The river operations have been turned over to the prohibition unit, the coast guard has several fast boats on the lakes while the customs service is guarding the land border.

A big handicap in the rum war is the lack of uniformity in directions of Federal courts in cases of seized liquor craft. California and Texas courts have held that ships may be seized regardless of their position if found in contact with the shore. Connecticut and other northeastern courts have released ships similarly seized.

Attorney General Sargent announced he would appeal Connecticut cases to the Supreme Court.

Absurdity of Man

Really, when it comes to glory there is no limit to the absurdity of man. A man will glory in a disease, a vice, the wealth of an ancestor when he is himself poor or the poverty of an ancestor when he is himself rich; the street in which he lives; the color of his hair, of his eyes; the possession of something which he picked up in the street—even the abuse of some one more notorious than himself. Men will glory in anything, just as the famine-struck will eat anything. Such is the appetite for glory. And why is it there? I say again, to make men achieve, to make them write bad verse, build hideous houses, put up impossible monuments, pass bad laws, and in general destroy their kind.—Hillarie Belloc in the New Statesman.

Hold Pitscoat For Grand Jury

Charles Pitscoat was charged with murder, first degree, when arraigned before Justice D. S. Hutchins at Marlborough Monday afternoon. He was brought back to jail where he will be held to await the action of the grand jury. It is alleged that he killed one Max Miller at Marlborough when on July third he cut his throat with a pocket knife following an argument at the Doyle farm.

Pitscoat is a Russian and at the hearing at Marlborough claimed he could not understand English. An interpreter was secured by F. C. Merritt who appeared for the district attorney's office and Pitscoat was informed of his rights.

Miller was standing by the shack, talking with another employee at the time Pitscoat arose from a cot where he had been lying and drew a knife across Miller's throat. Miller died Saturday, July 11, at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh.

Kellogg's Plans Are Acceptable

Conference May Get Underway in Few Weeks—Failure on Great Britain's Part to Agree to Confer Would Mean Loss of Her Trade.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 14.—Opposition to Secretary Kellogg's suggestion for an immediate conference on Chinese affairs is dwindling, particularly in Great Britain, it was learned officially today.

Informal advices from American Minister John Van A. MacMurray in Peking have indicated the powers will shortly announce they are in favor of the conference.

This latest turn in the Chinese situation was taken in official circles here to mean that the actual machinery of calling the conference may get underway during the next few weeks, looking toward a formal meeting in the fall.

British commercial interests in China were believed to be back of the original diffident Downing street proposal. Japan, on the other hand, is more friendly toward the proposal.

Failure of Britain to agree to the conference would place her in danger of Chinese boycott and possibly a loss of much of her trade, a part of which would be probably given to both the United States and Japan.

Secretary Kellogg declined to discuss the situation today although it was clearly indicated that he is encouraged by late developments. It was denied in official quarters that any agreement had yet been concluded between the United States, Great Britain and Japan in regard to policy in the Orient, although the powers are moving toward an accord which would result in a formal conference.

America Hopeful of Outcome.

Swampscott, Mass., July 14.—The United States government is making every effort to expedite the conference on China by the powers signatory to the Washington Nine-power pact. It was learned from an official source at White Court, the president's summer home, today.

With the expectation of enlisting the immediate aid of the eight other powers, including China, in the conference, the United States through the state department is hopeful that the proposed negotiations will soon be underway bringing tranquility and prosperity to China and obtaining that nation's assured protection for foreigners within its territory.

RADIO

By A. DINGDALE, in New York Herald-Tribune.

Radio-frequency amplification has engaged the attention of experimenters both here and on the other side of the Atlantic for some time past, but with the exception of the superheterodyne all the systems so far devised have proved unsatisfactory when applied to more than at most three stages.

The reason for this difficulty with multistage R. F. amplification lies in the fact that self-oscillation of the R. F. tubes is difficult or impossible to control. Many different methods of preventing this unwanted oscillation have been tried by introducing into the circuit different stabilizing devices.

John Scott Taggart, the well-known British designer, set out to find means of overcoming the difficulty without introducing more or less inefficient stabilizers. He alternated tuned circuits with untuned circuits, the grid circuit being tuned and the plate circuit untuned.

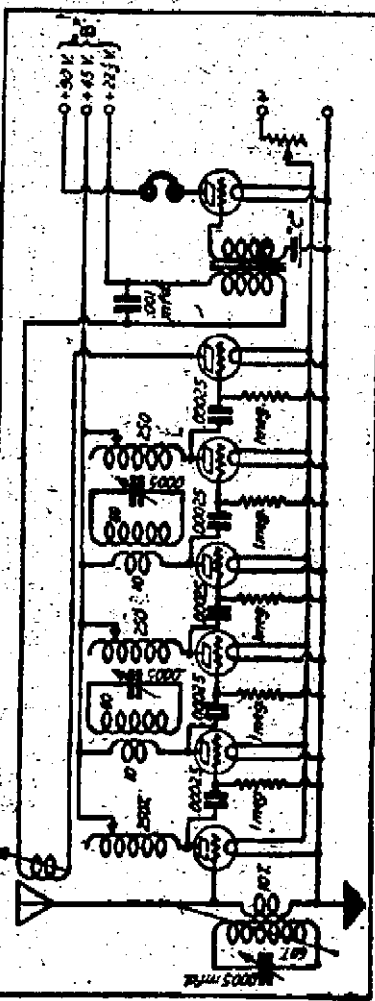

This method immediately proved successful, for the stability is perfect, regeneration being necessary, in fact, to make the set oscillate.

A seven-tube circuit, giving five stages of R. F. amplification in which regeneration was employed, was constructed, but was found to be lacking in selectivity, although very stable and sensitive.

The circuit was therefore modified by the introduction of wave traps into all the tuned circuits, which modification immediately elevated the system into the superheterodyne class as regards selectivity, while reducing the sensitivity by only a small amount.

The method is illustrated in the diagram.

There are two kinds of wave traps. In one method the interfering station is cut out, leaving the desired signals, and in the other the selectivity of the receiver is increased to such a pitch that the interfering signals cannot get through.

The latter method is the more scientific and is the one adopted. The explanation of the principle is as follows:

If the trap circuit L2C1 were not present the coupling between the first and second tubes would be by means of the inductance L1 only—i. e., entirely aperiodic. Thus all interferences present in the aerial circuit would be passed on to the next stage.

By introducing the trap circuit and tuning it exactly to the frequency of the desired signals, the coil L1 no longer remains entirely aperiodic. Since L1 is tightly coupled to L2 it comes under the influence of the trap circuit and is inclined to respond more to the frequency of that circuit.

If, on the other hand, L2C1 is not accurately tuned to the incoming frequency L1 reverts to its original aperiodic condition.

Now, a choke coil, to produce an appreciable amount of amplification, must consist of a considerable number of turns, otherwise there will be no build-up, or increase in amplitude, of the oscillations flowing through it. That is to say, if L1 consists of relatively few turns it will act as a virtual short circuit to the oscillations transferred to the plate circuit by the grid.

Applying Wave Traps. In practice, the circuit L2C1 may consist of any of the usual forms of low-loss inductance, say 60 turns, tuned by a low-loss condenser of 0.0005 mfd. capacity.

L1, which is tightly coupled to L2, may consist of a coil of 25 turns, or less. As low a number as eight turns has been used with success, the determining factor being the degree of selectivity required. Eight turns will give very much greater selectivity than 25 turns, and the loss of volume will only be slight. The point is one which the individual experimenter can with advantage decide for himself.

Except for the aperiodic coils, the components are all standard, and the number and arrangement of the various stages are given just as a suggestion to the experimenter.

As a matter of fact, the writer strongly recommends the reader to commence experiments with only three stages of R. F., as the selectivity will be found to be so great, in a well-built-out receiver using good low-loss components, that two condensers will be found to be quite enough to handle.

It matters little whether the tickler coil is coupled to the aperiodic aerial coil or to the wave trap inductance. Those who prefer to use plug-in coils can use an ordinary three-coil holder in this position.

Similarly, plug-in coils, mounted inside the cabinet, may be used for the interstage R. F. chokes, which are shown variable in the diagram. This variability is desirable because, in a sense, a choke coil of this sort is not absolutely aperiodic. A coil which will present sufficient impedance to a certain frequency to cause the necessary build-up of oscillation amplitude, will present a negligible impedance to another much lower frequency.

Thus, if plug-in coils are used, they can be changed to suit the wave length being received. Nos. 150, 200 or 250 will cover the American broadcast band satisfactorily.

Alternative Choke Coil.

An alternative choke coil which can be made up by those who desire maximum possible efficiency on any given wave length consists of 150 turns of No. 40 s. s. c. resistance wire wound on a former about 2 3/4 inches in diameter. Tappings are taken to a ten-point rotary switch from the ends of the coil, and from the fiftieth turn. From the fiftieth turn to the one hundred and twentieth turnings are made at every tenth turn.

The switch for this coil may be mounted on the face of the panel, or, more conveniently, on the end of the coil, which can be mounted on the baseboard. This is a point for the experimenter himself to settle.

The interstage R. F. wave trap coils may be wound as cylindrical coils, and the few turns of the aperiodic plate coils wound over the central part of the winding. In this way turns can easily be put on or taken off during the course of experiments. The aerial coils can be made up in the same manner if plug-in coils are not used.

There is, of course, no reason why special low-loss coils of the various basket-wound types should not be made up, the few turns of the aperiodic coils being wound on the same former to insure tight coupling.

Having familiarized himself with the method of tuning, the experimenter may proceed to add as many stages of R. F. as he pleases, but if more than three are employed it is practically essential that a multiple condenser be used in conjunction with carefully matched coils.

Suggestions of Lay-Out.

The main thing to bear in mind when arranging the lay-out is to avoid overcrowding in the R. F. circuits and to so arrange all coils that no interaction can occur between them.

Using only three stages of R. F. and no A. F., many Britishers report loud-speaker signals from American stations almost every night, with an unusual absence of fading and freedom from distortion. This alone speaks volumes for the efficiency of the receiver, for, although many different types of receivers in use in England today will bring in American stations regularly, fading, swinging and "night effect" distortion are almost always present.

As regards selectivity, it has been found possible, within a mile or so of the local station, to completely tune it out and receive uninterruptedly upon a wave length within a few meters of it.

Things to Remember in Care of Dry Batteries

A dry battery will not stand much abuse. If it is accidentally dropped one or more of its internal connections is liable to be broken, or the sealing compound on its top might become cracked, through which moisture can seep, causing a leakage between cells, which acts as a continual drain on the battery. If dust accumulates on the top of the battery, wipe it off with a dry cloth, never with a wet rag, as this, too, will cause a drain or leakage between the terminals until such time as the moisture evaporates. Metal articles, such as trays, shears, metal pencils, etc., if placed on a battery, will cause a possible short circuit.

Use Fine Sandpaper to Keep Phone Jacks Clean

Dirty contacts of phone jacks will produce sizzling and trying noises in the headphones or loud speaker. The simplest way to clean these jack contacts is to let them close on a piece of fine sandpaper and then pull the sandpaper out. Repeat this process with the sandpaper turned over and then both contacts are surely clean. Do not use emery paper, because emery powder is conductive and may partially short circuit the jack.

Value of By-Pass Condensers

By-pass condensers across the "A" batteries act as a control for the fluctuating current, changing as the voltage rises and discharging as the voltage drops. This makes more stable operation of the set.

Skull May Locate Garden of Eden

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Jerusalem, July 14.—A pre-historic skull whose discovery holds coincidental interest with the Scopes trial in Tennessee today furnished scientists with another link in the evolution chain.

It was discovered near Tiberias, which lies near the Sea of Galilee in Syria, and for those of literal orthodoxy may lead to the location of what was the site of the Garden of Eden.

While the skull resembles that of the Neanderthal European type of pre-historic man, scientists say it places the time of primitive man in Palestine at a more remote period than any previous discovery.

The skull resembles that of a chimpanzee in the ridges over the eyes and in the depressed forehead.

NEW DAY LINE STEAMER MAKES FIRST TRIP

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 14.—With a large number of passengers aboard, the newest Hudson River Day Line steamer "Ghauncey M. Depew" sailed from New York yesterday afternoon on her first trip between New York and Poughkeepsie, stopping at Yonkers, Indian Point, Bear Mountain, West Point and Newburgh enroute. She arrived at Poughkeepsie at 6:15 p. m. and will make the return voyage at 7:10 a. m. this morning, arriving in New York at 12 noon. Captain Grant Lazette is in command and the purser is Frank Howly. This service between New York and Poughkeepsie will be daily and Sunday.

SENATOR DOUTON ILL

IN ONEONTA HOSPITAL

Hon. Arthur F. Doughton of Seneca, senator from the Western Greenbush district, was taken to the Putnam Hospital in Oneonta last Saturday, suffering from an attack of appendicitis. At first it was feared that an operation might be necessary. He responded to treatment, however, and is recovering, and is expected to leave the hospital in a few days.

Middletown Team Here Tonight

This evening at 6:30 o'clock the Colonials will play the Middletown Grays at the Kingston Fair Grounds. This will be the third game of the series between these two clubs. The game scheduled for Wednesday with the Woodstock team has been cancelled and on Thursday the Colonials will travel to Middletown where they will meet the Middletown Grays in the fourth game of the series. So far there has been no game scheduled for Saturday. Sunday Walter Mitchell's All Stars of Franklin Square, Long Island, will be the attraction. Mitchell's All Stars are reputed to be a good team and the ex-big leaguer is said to have some real ball players on his string.

Gertrude Ederle Picked to Win

American Girl Swimmer Believed to Have a Good Chance of Swimming the Drowned English Channel.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 14.—Much confidence, and little of it misplaced, has been reposed in the ability of Gertrude Ederle, American champion, to succeed where many a good man and woman has failed before her—the swimming of the dreaded English Channel. She will make the attempt within the next five weeks and seldom has the effort been viewed with greater general serenity.

It apparently would surprise no one if Miss Ederle completed the 21 mile crossing from Cape Gris Nez to Dover, and this is all the more significant for the fact that not more than a half dozen men and not a single woman have succeeded among the hundreds who have merely tried—and failed.

Factors in Her Favor.

The American girl has two factors in her favor that were unknown to most of her predecessors. They are:

1. Her great ability at speed swimming via the six-beat crawl, which is expected to enable her to reach her goal before the inevitable and fateful turn of the tide.

2. The greater resistance of the feminine body to the almost icy waters of the channel.

Miss Ederle also will be favored by the seasonal "neap" tide prevailing at the time. But so was everyone else who attempted the crossing in August.

Her greatest asset, beyond a doubt, is found in the fact that she can and probably will follow a faster time schedule than any who have gone before. Miss Ederle will swim on a 14-hour schedule, and if she goes through with it will break the record by more than three hours.

This will be no trick, for it is taken for granted that, if she succeeds at all, a new record will be created.

She, therefore, stands the best chance in history of beating the tide's turn, an element that has defeated so many within sight of land.

Remarkable Sprint Record.

To those who may be pleased to think that no sprinter can sustain her speed over a distance, reference should be made to the first important victory scored by Miss Ederle. It came in a three-mile ocean swim off Brighton Beach in a sea that had churned itself into a lather.

The race was supposed to be a two-girl affair between Hilda James of England and Helen Vainwright, American all-around star, but the Ederle girl went right out at the start and, using her powerful crawl, left the others far in the rear. She won by three-quarters of a mile and only the beach stopped her from swimming right up into the Bronx. The had only begun to swim at this juncture. The others were cooked to a turn.

Cigarette Beat Teaser's Record

The Cigarette, C. Gordon Hamersley's speed boat, passed Kingston Point at 2:54 o'clock Monday afternoon on its trip up the Hudson from New York to Albany. This speed boat was en route to beat the record held by Richard K. Hoyt's boat, the Teaser.

The Cigarette covered the route in two hours and thirty-eight minutes, beating the Teaser's time by two minutes. The boat had to slow down on several occasions in passing other boats. It being dangerous to take their swells at high speed, the up-trip was halted at Castleton for forty-eight minutes because of a leaky gas connection. The down-trip was ended at Poughkeepsie because of engine trouble, the boat remaining at the Bridge City over night.

The Cigarette is thirty-three feet long and is driven by a 550 horsepower motor. Her best time is a mile in fifty-four seconds. C. F. Chapman, editor of Motor Boating, who represents the American Power Boat Association, was a passenger on the boat.

London has 316 playing fields for use of youthful soccer players in various public parks. Clubs must make application for playing space early each year. Last year 538 applied.

England believes that cricket for women has come to stay. The game is played keenly and seriously at girls' schools throughout the country. There are also many women's cricket clubs.

American Women Pioneers

No women arrived with the first settlers in Virginia in 1607. The following year, however, two women, a Mistress Forrest and her maid, Anne Burdett, came to America. These are probably among the earliest to reach the country.

Didn't Want Pitcher to See Bat Plainly

A young man from Hartford took his girl to see one of the games at the Polo grounds between the Reds and the Giants. While at bat one of the players rubbed his hands in the dirt and then ran his dirty hands down the length of the bat several times. Fans know this is a regular habit of many players and think nothing of it.

"Why is he rubbing dirt on the bat?" she inquired innocently. "Is it so the pitcher can't see it so plainly when he tries to hit it?"

UMPIRING HONORED JOB IN OLDEN DAYS

There have been many radical departures in baseball from the customs of other days. One is treatment of umpires.

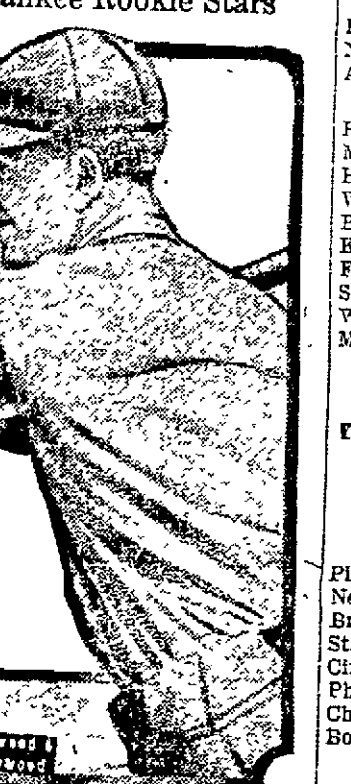

In the early part of baseball—from 1850 and 1860—an umpire was highly honored. After each game the players would give three cheers for each other and then, as a grand finale, they would bow forth with three more—and sometimes more—for the umpire. In cost cases, at least up to 1865, the umpire was one of the distinguished men of the city. The clubs vied with each other in trying to secure the most prominent personages.

They were often given easy chairs, placed near the home plate, provided with fans on hot days, and their absolute comfort was uppermost in the minds of the players.

After each game in the early '60s sandwiches, beer, cakes and other refreshments were served by the home team.

The umpire always received the choicest bits of food and the largest glass of beer—in case he cared for such beverage. If he didn't he needed but express his desires in the throat-quenching line before the game started—and he got it.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 14.—A report in circulation today was to the effect that Frank Flannery, matchmaker for Tex Rickard, was to resign in favor of Charley Donesick, local promoter and manager. Flannery was associated with Rickard in the promotion of the Dempsey-Willard match at Toledo, and has held his present position for several years.

Tagging Major League Bases

Jack Quinn, the ancient salivary gland, wet washed the Tigers right of the ball game, 4 to 1 and the Athletics went one game nearer the leading Senators.

Youth had its day when Kent Greenfield held the Cubs hitless for the first six innings and Bill Terry staked the Giants to the winning runs in the seventh with a homer. Score 3 to 1.

Everything was sweet in Flatbush until the ninth when the Pirates laid rough hands on the pitching of Hubbell, scored three and beat the Dodgers, 4 to 2.

Three home runs by H. Rice, Hargrave and Sisler gave the Browns a five to four decision over the Senators.

Hornsby waffled his twenty-third of the season out of the park, but the Phils smote Reinhart for two singles and a double in the tenth and beat the Cardinals 3 to 2.

The Yankees finished second to Faber and the White Sox with their customary finesse. Score 8 to 4.

Handling the game to the Reds on a phaffing dish, the Braves kicked in with five errors and lost, 4 to 1.

Carlyle's homer off Shaute gave the Red Sox a ninth inning decision over the Indians in one of those things, 12 to 11.
